Please note that any small differences between the Overall Score and the added total of Measurement Theme scores are due to rounding the numbers at different stages of the score calculation process.

Please note also that the "Not met" labels in the Explanation boxes below do not necessarily mean that the company does not meet the requirements as they are described in the bullet point short text. Rather, it means that the analysts could not find information in public sources that met the requirements as described in full in the CHRB 2022 Methodology document for the sector concerned. For example, a "Not met" under "General HRs Commitment", which is the first bullet point for indicator A.1.1, does not necessarily mean that the company does not have a general commitment to human rights. Rather, it means that the CHRB could not identify a public statement of policy in which the company commits to respecting human rights.

Score 1
• Met: Commitment to respect H&S of workers: The Company states that 'Sony is committed to maintaining a healthy, safe and productive work environment that is free from discrimination or harassment, in which all individuals are treated with respect and dignity. (...) We will also adhere to all applicable health and safety laws and regulations as well as internal rules and policies to help ensure workplace safety'. [Code of Conduct, 2021: sony.com]
• Not Met: Respect ILO labour standards on working hours or Commits to 48 hours regular work week
Score 2
• Met: Expect suppliers to commit to H&S of their workers: The RBA Code, required for suppliers, indicates that 'Participants recognize that in addition to minimizing the incidence of work-related injury and illness, a safe and healthy work environment enhances the quality of products and services, consistency of production and worker retention and morale. Participants also recognize that ongoing worker input and education are essential to identifying and solving health and safety issues in the workplace'. In particular, there is increased attention on labor practices, including work environments at electronic component manufacturers and original design manufacturing/original equipment manufacturing, or ODM/OEM, product manufacturers operating in Asia. Increased regulation or public pressure in this area could cause Sony’s compliance costs to increase, particularly since Sony uses many parts, components and materials to manufacture its products and relies on suppliers to provide these parts, components and materials but does not directly control the suppliers’ procurement or employment practices. A finding of non-compliance, or the perception that Sony has not responded appropriately to growing consumer concern for such issues, whether or not Sony is legally required to do so, may adversely affect Sony’s reputation, operating results and financial condition’. • Met: HR affects selection of suppliers: In the context of fair procurement, the Company indicates the following: 'Sony selects its suppliers and contractors on the basis of competitive price, quality, delivery and other objective standards. Sony expects its suppliers and contractors to adhere to Sony’s ethical values and comply with applicable Sony policies concerning compliance with laws, respect for human rights, fair labor and employment practices, environmental conservation and the safety of products and services'. Furthermore, 'Compliance with the Sony Supply Chain Code of Conduct is factored in when choosing suppliers, who are assessed and selected based on human rights, ethical, environmental, and health and safety considerations, in addition to other factors.' [Code of Conduct, 2021: sony.com] & [Sustainability Report, 2021: sony.com]

• Not Met: HR affects on-going supplier relationships: Sony states that 'In fiscal 2018, Sony requested that all suppliers including existing suppliers comply with the Sony Supply Chain Code of Conduct, and conducted document assessments for 126 companies. [...] In the event that any deficiencies are discovered, the supplier is required to develop an improvement plan, and Sony monitors the supplier’s performance in the form of follow-up audits to ensure the progress of initiatives. In cases where any possibility of violations is reported at a secondary supplier, Sony works with the primary supplier to ensure that remedial action is carried out.' However, there is no clear evidence regarding decisions to expand, renew or terminate business relationships based on human rights issues. [Sustainability Report, 2021: sony.com]

Sony issues improvement instructions if needed, verifies the improvement results, and assesses to start business dealings'. Furthermore, 'In cases where any possibility of violations of the Sony Supply Chain Code of Conduct is reported via external sources, such as NGOs or media reports, Sony cooperates with the supplier in question to confirm the facts of the case expeditiously and objectively. Specifically, Sony may request that the supplier’s manufacturing site undergo a third-party RBA audit. In the event that any deficiencies are discovered, the supplier is required to develop an improvement plan, and Sony monitors the supplier’s performance in the form of follow-up audits to ensure the progress of initiatives. In cases where any possibility of violations is reported at a secondary supplier, Sony works with the primary supplier to ensure that remedial action is carried out.' Although those statements describes corrective action processes, no evidence disclosing the number of incidents was found [Sustainability Report, 28/10/2019: sony.net]

• Met: Disclose findings and number of corrective action: Sony demonstrates the following: 'Examples of Instructions for Improvement Based on Observations from On-Site Assessments: Working hours - Observation: Excessive working hours at a supplier in China (over 60 hours per week). Improvement instructions: Requested systematic improvement of working hours (to bring them below 60 hours per week), and regular monitoring until improvements are completed.' [Sustainability Report, 28/10/2019: sony.net]
Southeast Asia and China, local liaison officers assigned to communicate directly with suppliers are provided with the educational and training opportunities needed to serve as CSR specialists at local sites. These CSR specialists strive to ensure that suppliers make continuous efforts to improve management systems and other organizational structures, by communicating with them and providing direct guidance on ways to improve. Furthermore, 'In fiscal 2018, Sony conducted on-site checks for safety management at supplier facilities, as it did in the previous fiscal year. These on-site checks enabled Sony to identify issues and instruct suppliers to improve the fire prevention management at their facilities. Issues that were frequently identified in the on-site checks included degraded power lines, malfunctioning fire doors, and deficiencies in the installation of control boards for fire pumps. In addition, as part of its efforts to prevent the use of forced labor, Sony provided suppliers in its supply chains with up-to-date information on human rights related laws and regulations and common industry findings, as well as providing assessment tools and codes of conduct. These initiatives helped to further strengthen Sony’s supply chain management.' [Sustainability Report, 28/10/2019: sony.net]

| E(1).0         | Serious allegation No 1 | • Area: Forced labour
• Headline: Sony among companies accused of using suppliers linked to forced labour in China
• Story: On March 1st, 2020, the Australian Strategic Policy Institute (ASPI) released a report called "Uyghurs for sale" that named Sony among 83 companies benefiting from the use of potentially abusive labour transfer programmes. According to the report, more than 80,000 Uighur residents and former detainees from the north-western region of Xinjiang, China have been transferred to factories, implicating global supply chains. It is alleged that Muslim minorities are working in forced labour conditions across the country. The ASPI report said that workers live in segregated dormitories, are required to study Mandarin and undergo ideological training. In addition, the think tank said that the workers were allegedly transferred out of Xinjiang between 2017 and 2019 and claimed that people are being effectively "bought" and "sold" by local governments and commercial brokers.
The ASPI used open-source public documents, satellite imagery, and media reports, allowing to identify 27 factories in nine Chinese provinces that have used labourers. The research found up to 560 Xinjiang workers were transferred to work several factories including to Foxconn Technology, that supplies brands such as Amazon, Apple, Dell, Google, Huawei and Microsoft. Other factory implicated is O-Film Technology which supplies Apple, Huawei, Lenovo and Samsung with camera and touchscreen components.
ASPI researchers stated: "This report exposes a new phase in China’s social re-engineering campaign targeting minority citizens, revealing new evidence that some factories across China are using forced Uighur labour under a state-sponsored labour transfer scheme that is tainting the global supply chain". The report calls on companies mentioned to "conduct immediate and thorough human rights due diligence on its factory labour in China, including robust and independent social audits and inspections."
On July 22, 2020, O-Film subsidiary Nanchang, a Sony supplier, was one of the eleven companies blacklisted by the U.S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of Industry and Security over alleged human rights abuses involving Uighur Muslims in China.
According to the U.S. Department of Commerce, the O-Film subsidiary was named on the list "in connection with the forced labour of Uighurs and other Muslim minority groups in western China". Companies on the list must apply for special licenses to access U.S. technologies.

In a statement to Reuters, it said if any supplier is confirmed to have committed a major violation of its code of conduct, which prohibits the use of forced labor, then "Sony will take appropriate countermeasures including request for implementing corrective actions and termination of business with such supplier."
In response to Human Rights Now’s recommendation to clarify its business relationships with the suppliers linked to forced labor, Sony declared: "As a result of the investigation, we identified no direct business partners of Sony in Xinjiang Uygur Autonomous Region. RBA (as for Sony's Supply Chain Code of Conduct, the "Responsible Business Alliance") and RBA member companies conducted third party assessments on suppliers cited in the ASPI report, including a local level assessment. As a result, we identified that there was no fact of forced labor".
Similarly, in response to the observations formulated by the UN Human Rights Council Special Procedures, the Company stated on May 14th 2021: "We have carried out investigations in cooperation with the RBA including independent site- |

• Not Met: Detailed response: The company’s response in 2016 does not provide detail: “We take this issue seriously and have been conducting a fact-finding process. So far, we could not find obvious results that our products contain the cobalt originated from Katanga in the DRC.” The company’s response in 2017 addresses its alleged relationship with the supplier, “As a result of that investigation, five suppliers have reported that the cobalt contained in the battery parts they delivered to us include the ones that are sourced from the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC), and two of such five suppliers have reported that there were cobalt sourced from Huayou Cobalt.” However, the response does not address the allegation of inadequate screening for child labor specifically in its cobalt supply chain. - Headline: Sony employee dies due to overwork in the United Arab Emirates
- Story: On March 15, 2021, press sources reported that the Mita Labour Standards Inspection Office in Japan ruled that a 40-year-old Sony employee died due to overwork. The Japanese employee was assigned overseas and, according to the authority, died in the parking lot of his Dubai office on 15 January 2018, ten days after returning from a business trip to Japan. The Inspection Office found that the employee worked 80 average monthly hours more than normal hours for the three months immediately before his death and, in February 2021, his death was attributed to overwork. The authority recognized a causal relationship between his death and overtime work, determining it a workplace injury. |

• Area: Discrimination
- Headline: Sony investigating bullying and harassment claims from its employees
- Story: On June 13, 2021, press sources reported that Sony Music’s head office in the U.S. is investigating claims of discrimination, bullying, and harassment at its Australian branch. In April 2021, Sony Music Australia reportedly sacked its vice president of commercial music, after an internal investigation found he had bullied and harassed a number of employees at the company. Since the dismissal of the vice president, a dozen current and former Sony Music staff members have contacted the press to reveal their experiences of alleged discrimination, bullying, and sexual harassment.
A former employee claimed she raised concerns about the behaviour of the vice president, but her concerns were dismissed. “I remember trying to speak to a more senior colleague and she said, ‘this is the culture here, you will get used to it’” she said. According to press sources, the company is alleged to have made pregnant women and new mothers redundant, only for their roles to be renamed and filled by someone new.

As WBA, we want to emphasise that the results will always be a proxy for good human rights management, and not an absolute measure of performance. This is because there are no fundamental units of measurement for human rights. Human rights assessments are therefore necessarily more subjective than objective. The Benchmark also captures only a snap shot in time. We therefore want to encourage companies, investors, civil society and governments to look at the broad performance bands that companies are ranked within rather than their precise score because, as with all measurements, there is a reasonably wide margin of error possible in interpretation. We also want to encourage a greater analytical focus on how scores improve over time rather than upon how a company compares to other companies in the same industry today. The spirit of the exercise is to promote continual improvement via an open assessment process and a common understanding of the importance of the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights.
